

JProf. Dr. Ronald Saladin is Professor for Japanese Studies at the University of Trier, Germany. Before he took this position, he taught and conducted research at the Universities of Cologne (Germany) and Vienna (Austria). He also was a Senior Research Fellow at the German Institute for Japanese Studies, Tokyo. Dr. Saladin approaches his research foci and interests within the framework of humanities and social sciences. In his case studies, he analyzes topics concerning gender constructions, lifestyle, youth- and subcultures and social developments of Japan, among others.