

On behalf of Sophia University, I would like to express my sincere gratitude for being able to welcome Her Excellency Ms. Amina J. Mohammed, Deputy Secretary-General of the United Nations to our University. Having strongly acknowledged the need for collaboration across the world in these times that we live in, we must seize the moment to renew and deepen our understanding of the significance and functions of the United Nations. Therefore, this valuable opportunity to hear a direct address by one of the top players of the United Nations in person should bring us closer to the many emerging challenges faced by the world today. I would like to welcome Her Excellency Amina J. Mohammed with the hope that this lecture will offer momentum for all of you, who represent younger generations, to think about the future world in the context of the globally shared SDGs.

Yoshiaki Terumichi
President
Sophia University